This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

PREFACE.

THE REV. DR. DANIEL WILLIAMS was an eminent Protestant dissenting minister of the Presbyterian denomination, in the latter part of the seventeenth, and the beginning of the eighteenth, century; he was born at Wrexham, in Denbighshire, in 1644, and died in London in 1716, bequeathing nearly the whole of his ample fortune to public and charitable objects.

For some time previous to his decease, he had formed the design of founding in the Metropolis a Public Library, to be placed under the management and control of a succession of Trustees, and to be accessible to such persons as they, in their discretion, should admit to the privilege.

Dr. Williams's private collection of books, which he destined to this object, was very numerous and of great value; but before his death, he had added to it, by purchase, the entire library of Dr. William Bates, which was known to contain a large number of rare and curious works, Dr. Bates being esteemed one of the most learned and accomplished bibliographers of his time.

Owing to some technical difficulties in the establishment of the trusts of Dr. Williams's will, his Trustees were not able to complete the arrangements for the opening of the Public Library before the year 1729, about thirteen years after the Testator's death.

They had obtained from the Court of Chancery, in the suit under which the affairs of the Trust have always been administered, an order to lay out a certain sum of money in the purchase of ground and the erection of a house in Red Cross Street, for the reception of the books; but this sum having been wholly expended before the building had advanced near its completion, the Trustees, who were unwilling to apply to the Court for an addition to the original grant, raised the funds that were wanted for finishing the house and furnishing the principal apartments, by handsome contributions from themselves, and liberal donations from opulent friends who were favourable to the design.

Whilst these arrangements were in progress, the books were, conformably to Dr. Williams's directions, carefully examined, the "duplicates and useless books" removed, and a Catalogue prepared of those selected for preservation, which was printed in the year 1727. The object of the Trustees in publishing the Catalogue so long before the Library was ready for use, is stated to have been "to induce other munificent and public-spirited persons, and lovers of literature, to contribute to its augmentation." In this expectation they were not disappointed; many donations, some of them of great value, were received for the increase of the Library; but the largest accession was derived from Dr. William Harris, the personal friend of Dr. Williams, who bequeathed for this purpose the whole of his own library. At many subsequent periods, liberal contributions have been made to it, both by Trustees, and by other friends of the Institution not connected with its management*.

Dr. Williams having, in the disposal of his property, made no provision for the augmentation of the Library, orders were obtained by the Trustees from the Court of Chancery, in the years 1805 and 1830, authorizing the application of certain portions of the annual surplus profits of the Trust estates to this specific purpose. In consequence of this order, they have from that time been enabled to enrich the Library by the purchase of a considerable number of standard works in various languages.

* It has been usual with the Lay Trustees, on their appointment, to present to the Library the sum of ten guineas, or some book or books equivalent to that sum.

The Library, in its present state, comprises a very extensive and valuable collection of books in both the ancient and modern tongues, and in all the more important departments of learning, especially in those of theology and ecclesiastical history and biography.

Looking, however, to the uses to which such an Institution may be applied,—open without distinction to persons of all classes and parties,—and placed in the centre of the Metropolis, now made the seat of a University, and therefore furnishing a new stimulus to the more general cultivation of science and literature, it must be apparent, that whatever may hitherto have been done, much yet remains, which it is desirable to effect for its improvement, by contributions from authors and learned bodies, and from the opulent and liberal of all descriptions.

The chief aim of those benefactors who have contributed to the augmentation of the Library, has been to promote its general usefulness, without reference to sectarian distinctions. The Trustees, in the appropriation of the money placed at their disposal for its improvement, have been guided wholly by the same principle,—looking to public utility alone.

It was the intention of the benevolent Founder, that, with a view to its more extensive usefulness, his Library should be easy of access. Acting up to his liberal design, the Trustees have always aimed to afford every practicable facility for the admission of visitors; imposing no restraints beyond such as they deemed to be indispensable for the security of the property, and the general interests of the Institution, and such, indeed, as are usual in other public libraries.

The mode of obtaining admission may be learnt from the printed Regulations, which will be found below; and if in any case difficulty should be experienced by individuals in procuring the necessary introductions, assistance will, on application, be cheerfully afforded them by the Librarian, who is resident on the premises.

The first Catalogue, comprising the united collections of Dr. Williams and Dr. Bates, was published, as already stated, in 1727. Another Catalogue was published in 1801, embodying all the additions made to the Library up to that period. A new Catalogue having been rendered necessary by the great augmentation of the Library, the following volumes have been compiled. The various alterations which have been made in the form and arrangements of the Catalogue need not be stated in detail. Suffice it to mention, that the classification under the several divisions of sizes and languages has been altogether abandoned, and that the whole of the books have been arranged under one alphabet for the greater facility of reference.

An important addition has been made on the present occasion, by the compilation of an entirely new Catalogue, devoted exclusively to Tracts and Pamphlets, of which the Library contains a large and, in many respects, a curious and valuable collection. This forms the Second Volume; the First Volume being altogether devoted to the larger books. To the First Volume has been subjoined an Appendix, comprising the books added to the Library during the time the Catalogue has been in preparation.

Dec. 1, 1841.

RULES OF THE LIBRARY.

ESTABLISHED MARCH 11TH, 1835.

I. THE Library shall be open on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in every week throughout the year, except Christmas and Whitsuntide weeks, and the month of August, from ten o'clock in the forenoon till three in the afternoon, during the months of November, December, January and February, and from ten o'clock in the forenoon till four o'clock in the afternoon, during the other months in which the Library is open, and the Librarian (unless prevented by sickness) shall constantly attend the Library at such times; nevertheless, a Trustee shall have access to the Library whenever he thinks proper.

II. All persons shall be admitted to the Library during the appointed days and hours, upon producing to the Librarian a written order from one of the Trustees, specifying their names and places of abode, and also the title or titles of the book or books intended to be consulted. But they shall not be permitted to enter the back Library, except in the presence of a Trustee or of the Librarian.

III. Persons who are admitted by a Trustee's order to consult the books, shall be introduced into the front Library, which shall be used as a reading-room. The book or books shall then be brought to them there, to be consulted or perused. No paper shall be laid on the book in use or any other book when any extracts are made.

The written orders for books which may thus be delivered to the Librarian shall be carefully preserved by him on a file, to be afterwards referred to, in case any work named in them should be discovered to have been mutilated or damaged.

IV. No book shall be taken out of the Library except by one of the Trustees, on his giving a receipt for it to the Librarian, or an order upon the Librarian regularly subscribed and dated, which order shall be the said Trustee's receipt; and such book shall be returned at or before the next quarterly Meeting, except the same be in the actual possession of such Trustee.

V. The Librarian shall keep a correct account of all books taken out of the Library, with the time when taken, and the name of the Trustee taking the same, and of all applications for books already taken, and such accounts shall, from time to time, be laid before the Trustees at their regular meetings.

VI. All books given or purchased for the use of the Library shall be, immediately on such gift or purchase, inserted by the Librarian in the Catalogue in their proper places, and stamped or marked; and all books or manuscripts presented, together with all other gifts to the Library, the Museum and the Library-rooms, shall be entered in the Book of Benefactions, in which shall be specified the time of the donation and the name of the donor; and such Book of Benefactions shall be laid on the table at every ordinary Meeting of the Trustees.

VII. The Librarian shall not receive any money or other gratuity from any person for the use of the Library.
